Agronomy Tip Sheet

With all of the supply chain issues we continue to hear about in just about every aspect of our lives, farming is no different. Fertilizer and crop protection chemicals are also being affected by many different forces. Planning ahead is going to be a key for success in 2022. As we wrap up harvest we need to be thinking about next year. What crops are you going to plant next season? Having a backup plan for your herbicide program may be key as certain products will be in short supply. Your CFC field sales team can help you come up with a plan and a backup or two to make sure you are not scrambling at the last minute. Contact us today and we can discuss options and strategies to have a successful 2022 in spite of all of the new challenges we are facing.
