Agromony Tip Sheet

As we head toward summer it's time to think about summer forage for your animals. Summer annuals are a great way to improve summer grazing or provide a large amount of hay or baleage for winter feeding. Growing a summer annual is also a great way to help get weeds under control in hayfields and pastures that you want to reseed this fall.

Pearl millet, sorghum-sudangrass, and sudangrass work great in our area during the summer. Each can be used for baleage or grazing. Sudan and sorghum-sudan typically provide the highest tonnage over 2-3 cuttings during the season. Millet can be made as dry hay if you have a dry weather window to make it. Grazing is also an option, but prussic acid can be an issue with sorghum-sudangrass if grazed too early. BMR varieties are available which provide the most digestible forage for your livestock.

Speak to your CFC territory sales manager to find a summer annual that will work for your operation. Find this and previous tip sheets at www.cfcfarmhome.com/agromony/agromony-tip-sheet.

Feed Spotlight: VitaFerm HEAT

Scientifically formulated, VitaFerm HEAT provides the correct balance of required minerals and vitamins to compliment summer forages during lactation and to maintain overall herd health. With the addition of Amaferm® – a natural feed additive that acts as a prebiotic to increase digestibility and maximize the energy value of feed – VitaFerm HEAT has been research-proven to help cattle maintain performance during heat stress and improve forage digestion and microbial growth within the ruminant system, which is often severely compromised by fescue. Additionally, VitaFerm HEAT contains a unique blend of clove, cinnamon and Capsaicin to help maintain circulation to support animal performance in both heat and fescue grazing situations. The combination of Amaferm and Capsaicin lowers body temperature, which can help improve conception rates and maintain pregnancy. Garlic added to the formulation acts as a natural insect repellent.
